Toxic dump is focus of visit from governor

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

When Gov. James J. Blanchard signed a state environmental bill in Romulus April 11 he focused the spotlight on a community problem and provided a possible solution.

The legislation signed by Blanchard authorizes the expenditure of $175.8 million to clean up hazardous wastes, improve recreation areas and finance solid waste reduction.

The cleanup of a hazardous waste dump near Wick Elementary School is among the projects to be funded through the new legislation. State officials claim the abandoned dump site once contained 7,000 drums of industrial waste.

Blanchard signed the legislation at nearby Romulus Junior High School.

"We chose this area because right next door by Wick elementary is a perfect example of what we need to fight," the governor said.

The legislation, House Bill 4057, authorizes the expenditure of $117 million in funds from the Protect Michigan's Future bond issue, approved by voters in 1988. The law also calls for another $58.8 million toward environmental projects by matching funds collected through federal, restricted and private sources.

Present at the signing was David Hales, Michigan Department of Natural Resources director, State Rep. James Kosteva (D-Canton Township) and Elizabeth Harris, representing the Eastern Michigan Environmental Action Council.

The entourage visited the waste site after Blanchard signed the legislation.

DNR representatives at the site said drums containing industrial waste were removed from the dump last summer. They were determined to be non-hazardous and are expected to be moved to a landfill.

The next steps for the Romulus dump include a clay cap to prevent additional waste at the site from leaching. DNR representatives will then dig wells to test groundwater for contamination.

These efforts to clean the dump site come as good news to city officials who staged a study session last week about a proposed city-owned golf course that would cover a portion of the site.

"I was really happy to see the governor here," said Romulus Mayor Pro Tem Randolph Gear. "The city supports him 100 percent."

"One of the first sites that are going to be cleaned up is in Romulus and we appreciate that," said Councilmember William Wadsworth.

Councilmember Ellis Pennington said, "We're very grateful to the government and the state as a whole for appropriating money and selecting this site. We've tried for years to clean it up."

Existence of the dump has never been a secret in Romulus. Two fires at the site, including one that began under-

Race and fun walk are part of Romulus festival celebration

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Part of the Romulus Festival tradition is the annual trek across town by runners - the Romulus Community Pride 10K.

For the second year, the 10-kilometer racers will be joined by a slower-paced group for the One-Mile Run/Walk.

In 1989, 144 runners participated in the 10K (6.2-mile) race.

People from all over the state as well as Canada and Ohio have been known to compete.

"We get some very good runners that come back every year," said race director Nina Derda of Downriver Runners.

This year, the events will start at 8:30 and 9 a.m. May 19 near the Romulus Recreation Center on Bibbins Street. The last of the runners are expected to cross the finish line by 10:15 a.m.

Sponsoring the event are Romulus companies Westlane Industries, Inc., Federal Mogul, Chevrolet-Pontiac-Canada Group-Romulus Engine Operations and Budweiser.

Downriver Runners has coordinated the event the past four years.

For the 10K race, awards will be offered in overall male and female categories, three age divisions, wheelers (wheelchair racers) and team champions.

For the last category, runners can only represent one team with up to eight members. The top five runners will determine the standings.

In the one-mile event, trophies will be presented only to the first male and female walkers, courtesy of the Romulus Rovers Walking Club. All finishers will receive a ribbon.

The race course this year is a rectangular route on paved roads - Shook, Northline, Hannan, Cogswell, Wick and Ozga. Runners will have to endure two moderate hills.

First aid and water will be available throughout the course.

That morning will also feature the Kiwanis Club Pancake Breakfast, beginning at 8 a.m. The Romulus Senior High School Pep Band will provide music for the races at starting time.

Registration for the 10K race costs $10 before May 12, $12 after. Walkers must pay $3 before May 12 or the fee increases by $2.

Entry fees for both events include t-shirts, refreshments, drawings for prizes and a $1 discount coupon for the pancake breakfast.

Entry blanks are available at the Romulus Recreation Center.

Recreation surveys continue to pour in

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Nearly two months after recreation surveys were distributed among Romulus residents, responses continue to arrive at city offices.

The recreation department survey was a city reaction to growing debate among residents about the use of a former high school building. Surveys included questions about whether residents want to pay additional tax money to convert South Junior High School into a community center or if they prefer spending money for a new facility.

Residents were also asked what kind of recreation activities they think the community needs.

Recreation Director Duwayne Martin said 9,000 surveys were mailed in early February. His office to date has received more than 1,200 responses.

"We're still getting them in,"

he said.

The department, Martin said, will continue to accept surveys until the end of the month. The questionnaires will then be analyzed, and public responses will be publicized.

Currently, opinion on the school building proposal remains divided.

"South could go either way," Martin said.

When the final answers are analyzed, the city will know what the various schools of thought are, he added.

"We would know where our yes, no's and undecided are." From there, Martin said, the city would educate the "undecided" residents by presenting the pros and cons of the South debate through published information and public meetings.

Debate about South school began nearly a year ago when Romulus school officials announced plans to stop hosting in the building the Beacon Day Treatment program for emotionally disturbed children.

District officials were concerned about maintenance problems in the building, including the presence of potentially dangerous asbestos.

When the Beacon program left in June, another district concern was the money needed to repair or even maintain the school.

Then the arguments started in earnest.

One group of residents argued the building has historical value. It was built in 1930 to serve as the first high school for Romulus. These people petitioned city and school officials with the idea of saving the building and using it as a community center.

Residents near the Olive Street building said a community center would be too expensive for the city. They say the building would remain deserted and affect their property values.

City officials said the question of funding the school project may belong on an election ballot. The survey was a way to test the waters.

However, some supporters of the South issue claim the survey hurt their cause because of the costs listed on the questionnaire:

- Residents are asked if the city should consider purchasing and remodeling the school at an estimated cost of $6.1 million.

- It asks if residents would pay 1.4 mills per year of the next 20 years to fund the remodeling.

- An ongoing 1 mill is estimated for center operation and maintenance.

- Construction of a new center is estimated at $4.1 million at a cost of 1 mill for the next 20 years for construction. An ongoing 1 mill is also estimated for maintenance of a new building.

Martin said figures in the survey were estimated by two architects who visited the South building. He acknowledged a school building in Allen Park similar to South was converted into an office facility at a lesser cost than the Romulus estimates. But a community center is a more involved project, he said.

Martin described the classrooms in South as a "honey comb" effect.

"People need to look at facilities in Wayne, Inkster, Allen Park and Lincoln Park to see if those kinds of uses can be put in South Junior High School."

With a new facility, builders are not limited to the configurations of a building, Martin added. Construction can be tailored to the needs of the people.

Referring to the other aspect of the survey, suggestions for recreation activities, Martin said square dancing, roller skating, jazzercise and stress management emerged as the most popular.

Already, some of those activities are offered, he said.

Environmental bill becomes law in Romulus

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

In Romulus April 11 Gov. James J. Blanchard signed an environmental bill into law, authorizing the expenditure of $175.8 million toward cleanup projects, solid waste prevention and recreation improvements.

Funds for these projects were generated through the $800 million "Protect Michigan's Future" environmental bond issue approved by state voters in 1988.

Blanchard signed the bill at Romulus Junior High School, near an abandoned dump site that once contained 7,000 drums of industrial waste. The site will now be cleaned up with bond funds.

The legislation, H.B. 4057, authorizes the expenditure of $117 million in funds from the Protect Michigan's Future bond and another $58.8 million in matching funds collected through federal, restricted and private sources.

"This is important to the whole state, not just Romulus," Blanchard said.

The governor also called for legislation that would make polluters pay for cleanup efforts, S.B. 375.

"We cannot pass the bill to the taxpayers every time we clean up a dump site," Blanchard said, complaining about the slow movement of the legislation among state lawmakers. "If it's not passed by Memorial Day it will be a scandal."

Including the bond appropriation signed by the governor, approximately $200 million from the Protect Michigan's Future bond issue will have been approved with funds that include:

- $44.8 million to close 64 landfills and dumps and finance 82 resource recovery projects;
- $52.6 million for remedial cleanup action at 87 toxic waste sites;
- $40.6 million for restoration and improvements at 65 state parks;
- $25 million for the Great Lakes Protection Fund;
- $19.6 million for the Water Pollution Control Revolving Fund to help communities build waste water treatment plants;

• $7.7 million to local units of government for 63 recreation area development and improvement projects; and

• $4.7 million for boating, fishing and wildlife development projects.

In addition to the Romulus dump site, local projects to be funded through the legislation include Westland Corrado Park improvements, ($53,000), the surface cleanup of Wayne and Palmer roads at the railroad tracks and a site investigation for the Rouge River.

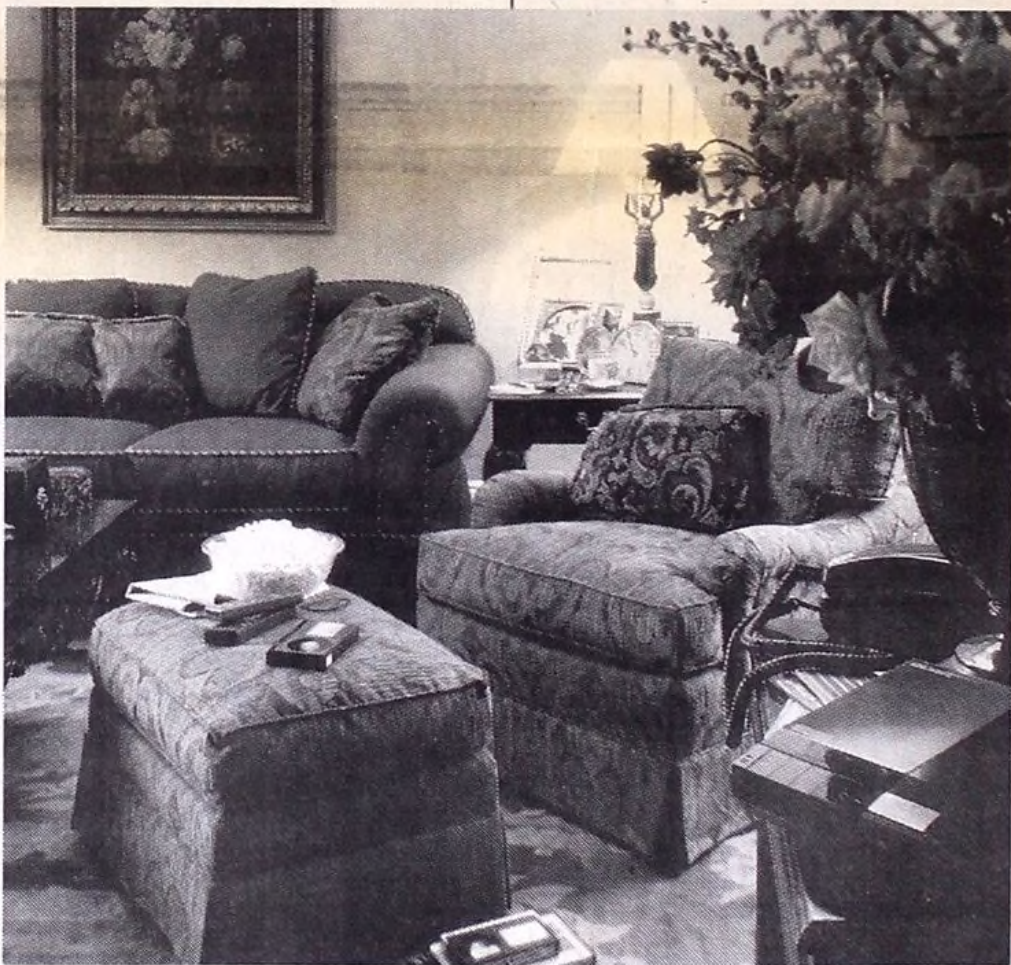

Before signing the legislation into law, the governor signed executive orders in Plainwell, establishing an environmental inspector general to ensure state government leads by example in environmental and health safety efforts.

The orders require environmental and health safety officers in each state department and a renewed commitment to regional, national and international efforts to protect the Great Lakes.

Alzheimer's Disease: Symptoms, Diagnosis, and Treatment

by Scott G. Lewis, M.D.

Alzheimer's Disease is a progressive, irreversible, neurological disorder that affects an estimated three million American adults over age 65 (it also can strike persons in their 40s and 50s). It is the most common form of dementing illness and the fourth-leading cause of adult death in the United States.

EARLY WARNING SIGNS

The early symptoms are short-term memory loss, agitation, inability to perform routine tasks, disorientation, personality change, and difficulty in language and learning skills.

As the disease progresses, these symptoms may intensify and additional symptoms may appear, including a desire to wander, muscle twitching, convulsive seizures, and repetitive actions. In the third stage, complete dependency develops. How rapidly the disease progresses depends entirely on the individual patient.

DIAGNOSIS OF ALZHEIMER'S DISEASE

The first step in diagnosing this disease is to rule out other conditions which mimic Alzheimer's, such as a reaction to medication, a particular vitamin deficiency, multiple strokes, or tumors.

A physician will compile a complete medical history and perform physical, neurological, and psychological tests. He also will perform a series of laboratory tests. This evaluation will provide a presumptive diagnosis. Absolute confirmation of the disease, however, cannot be determined until after death.

COPING WITH THE DISEASE

Although there is no cure for Alzheimer's Disease, proper medical and social management can ease the burden of patients and their families.

Certain medications can lessen the severity of the symptoms. Physical exercise, social activity, proper nutrition, and a well-structured environment also play important roles in treatment.

Next month: The emotional and psychological needs of the families who care for Alzheimer's patients.

ROMULUS NEWS DIGEST

Pancake feast approaches

Members of the Romulus Kiwanis Club are digging out their pancake flippers for an all-you-can-eat breakfast planned for April 28 at Romulus Progressive Hall on Ozga Road.

Along with pancakes, scrambled eggs and sausages will be served.

Breakfast begins at 7 a.m. and will continue until 2 p.m.

Proceeds from the event will help support a dental program for underprivileged children.

Participation is encouraged

With less than a month until the traditional Romulus Festival, residents are being encouraged to sign up for events now.

The Romulus Festival will be staged May 18, 19 and 20.

Kicking off the event is the parade, leaving city hall at 6 p.m. May 18. People interested in participating can obtain an entry form at the recreation center on Bibbins Street.

Signup is also under way for the arts and crafts sale, which will continue throughout the festival.

For more information call Gail Mach at the recreation center, 942-6852.

Census forms still available

City officials are reminding residents who have not received U.S. Census forms yet in the mail to call the Romulus community development office.

Forms should have arrived during the last week in March.

Throughout April, Jeffrey Martell of the community development department will compile a list of people who have not received a form. He said he will make sure the census bureau sends a letter or an individual to take information in person.

Martell can be reached at 942-7592.

Parents warned about shots

Romulus parents this month have been receiving reminders from the school district to check their children's immunization records.

Parents with children who received measles/mumps immunizations under the age of 15 months are encouraged to have the shot repeated and send proof for school files.

District officials report the latest area case of measles was reported at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti.

Bowling events are scheduled

Two days of bowling events have been scheduled this month by the Romulus Recreation Department.

Parent/child bowling will be staged at 2 p.m. April 21 at the Romulus bowling alley. The $13 fee includes bowling, pop, pizza, mystery games and prizes. Registration will be accepted at the alley on a first-come-first-served basis.

In addition, adult scotch doubles bowling is set for 9:30 p.m. April 28 at the Romulus bowling alley.

Couples will be charged $17 for bowling, pizza and jackpots. Again, registration will be accepted at the bowling alley.

For more information about either bowling activity contact the recreation department at 942-6852.

City may ease sidewalk requirements

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Sidewalks became a controversial subject Monday night when city councilmembers discussed proposed amendments to the Romulus sidewalk ordinance.

The changes presented by Community Planner Dennis Meagher soften the blow of existing policy, which forces all developers to construct sidewalks on their property for site-plan approval.

Meagher, after receiving input from the city planning commission, discussed two options.

First, the planning commission during site-plan review could accept payment for sidewalks instead of actually showing intent to construct them. The money would be placed in an escrow account and used when city officials decide sidewalks are needed.

Meagher said the account could only be used for sidewalk construction. Payments by developers would be based on estimated sidewalk costs at that time. Interest earned on those payments would remain in the account to cover inflation.

If the account did not contain enough money to cover a future construction cost, the city would subsidize it.

Councilmembers also considered a contract option. Developers in areas where sidewalks are not needed would sign a written agreement with the city. When Romulus officials decide sidewalks are needed, the developer would be responsible for construction. If the developer does not comply, a lien would be placed against that person's property to cover construction costs.

All councilmembers at the meeting said they are in favor of sidewalks for the city, but some questioned the means of gaining them.

"We think everybody here's got a lot of money to spend...there could be a backslide," said Councilmember Fred Junior Block. "I don't see anything here to cover this."

Block said most people would rather handle their own money instead of entrusting it to the city in an escrow account.

"What we have to decide is how we want sidewalks and where we want them," said Councilmember Noah Bergeron. "I think we all agree we want sidewalks on every major thoroughfare. I am concerned about setting up an escrow account. Maybe we should think about special assessments."

Bergeron also questioned inconsistencies in the sidewalk policy. Developers are responsible for sidewalks, but the city has assumed the cost of sidewalks in other sections of town, including part of Wayne

Road. In addition, Community Development Block Grants have been approved by city officials for sidewalk construction in a low-income neighborhood.

Councilmember Jimmie Raspberry referred to the proposed amendment as "a barrel of worms."

"We don't know how future leaders will interpret this," he said. "I'm for sidewalks but on the basis of people needing them."

Councilmember Ellis Pennington expressed support for the amendment. Pennington is a former member of the city planning commission and said he remembers discussion about the original ordinance.

"We felt if each person coming into this city would build in accordance with our sidewalk ordinance sooner or later a larger portion of our city would have sidewalks at the cost of the builder," he said.

Planning commission member Don Tredor said the current system is causing a portion of developers to appeal the ordinance, but the city does not have guidelines for that issue. The amendment allows commission members to offer builders alternatives for areas where sidewalks are not logical, such as an industrial park. "There's a happy medium out there...this would allow people not to put sidewalks where they're not needed at the time," Tredor said.

More councilmembers were supportive of the contract idea, which was not written into the amendment proposal. With that option, the city would not be responsible for establishing escrows.

Meagher agreed to return to council with an amendment containing the escrow and the contract option. He said he will also research sidewalk policies from other communities.

ground, focused additional attention on the problem.

Recently, DNR officials have said Romulus owns a portion of the land by tax reversion and is financially responsible for the cleanup.

City officials denied the state claims. When the DNR instigated cleanup efforts last summer the matter was still unsettled.

Now, at least part of the cleanup bill will be covered by the Protect Michigan's Future bond money.

"Hopefully, we can make an asset out of what's been a terribly neglected site," said Dennis Oakes, Romulus community development director. "The negative side is the toxic waste that has been here for years. The positive side is something's being done about it."

Meanwhile, the proposed golf course project has been put on hold until city officials are sure the development would not place financial responsibility for the cleanup back in their court.

Amendment eyed

Members of the Romulus Zoning Board of Appeals will be able to call in "substitutes" if a proposed ordinance amendment is approved by city council.

The amendment was presented to councilmembers during a study session Monday night. Members of the board of appeals and the city attorney drafted the amendment.

If approved, the amendment would call for two alternate members for the appeals board appointed for the same term as the regular members. Alternates could be called in for regular members on a rotating basis, and will have full voting powers.

In addition, alternates will be expected to remain with any case they begin until a final decision has been made.

During the study session, councilmembers suggested the alternates occasionally attend board meetings to remain informed of current issues they may face.

Murder mystery will come to life as fundraiser for the art council

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Last year at this time, city officials and residents joined forces at a local hotel to solve the mystery of a shocking crime - murder.

By the end of the night, these amateur detectives had found their culprit.

Now, a second evening of mystery is expected at the same hotel with many of the sleuths from the original crime.

A Vintage Murder, An Evening of Murder and Mystery is sponsored by the Romulus Arts Council.

Unlike traditional plays, people in the audience sit on the set. It is quite possible to be placed next to a cast member, even the murderer.

Art council members initiated the event last year as a fundraiser.

Pat Ditsch, playwright of the 1989 production, is also responsible for A Vintage Murder.

The original play was set in 1945 in the fictional town of Eagle Rock.

The new drama is set 10 years later at a campaign party for a group of election workers. Their boss, a senator, recently won the big election.

"During the night someone gets murdered," Ditsch said.

As the remaining people struggle to identify the murderer, clues tied to the 1945 evening surface.

Approximately 27 people have joined the cast this year, including State Rep. James Kosteva (D-Canton Township) and Wayne County Commissioner Milton Mack.

"There's quite a few who are city officials or business people," Ditsch said.

Actors were expected to stage their first rehearsal Tuesday.

Also participating are the Romulus Police Officers Association and the Romulus Command Officers Association.

"The police are helping us as technical advisors," Ditsch said. "They're preparing lab reports and volunteered as security for the play."

Officers are also expected to set up a temporary Eagle Rock police headquarters for the drama.

Art councilmembers said they hope to make the play as realistic as possible. Cast members are responsible for their own costumes and the search is on for props from the 1950s.

Ditsch said she was an unlikely candidate for playwright.

"I don't even particularly like to read plays," she said. "I just start with an idea, and it grows."

Tickets are still available for the play at $25 each. They will not be sold at the door.

A Vintage Murder begins at 4 p.m. April 28 at the Holiday Inn-Detroit Metro Airport.

For more information call Susan Watt at 941-0476.

Man arrested for guard rail theft

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

A 36-year-old Romulus resident was expected to be arraigned on theft charges Tuesday for removing aluminum guard rails from a Romulus expressway.

The defendant was arrested at a Wayne junkyard April 11 as he reportedly attempted to sell the railing.

Romulus police officials said early Tuesday the man was to be charged with receiving and concealing property more than $100, a felony.

Police say a second man who may be related to the defendant could also be connected to this case.

Stolen were several aluminum guard rails for a railroad bridge over Interstate-275 south of I-94.

These guard rails are installed by railroad companies and maintained by the Michigan Department of Transportation.

Romulus police officials worked with members of a railroad security staff during the initial investigation of this case. Wayne police officers have taken over and will proceed with the prosecution.

Former Willow Run test pilot relates his stories of Lindbergh and World War II

By JOHN AGGE
ANP Staff Writer

The metropolitan Detroit area is known worldwide for the automobile, but Wiley Reel remembers when the airplane dominated manufacturing in this area during World War II. Reel, a former bomber test pilot at the Willow Run facility, spoke recently at the monthly meeting of the Wayne Historical Society.

Reel tested the famous B-24 bomber planes produced at the Ford-built Willow Run plant from April 1943 to October 1944. The airplane manufacturing plant was dedicated in June 1941.

"I was there toward the end of the war," Reel said. "I was a civilian pilot on the Ford Motor Company payroll."

The plant was completed before the attack on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, indicating the readiness of the United States for the war, Reel said. Henry Ford carved the facility from the farms and sugar maples of the Willow Run area in approximately one year. The plant covered 80 acres and contained both a manufacturing and assembly facility. The entire complex was on 1,434 acres of land, with 288 acres devoted to runways.

The population of western Wayne County mushroomed as people moved to the area to take jobs in the plant. Wayne, for example, was a village of 4,000 before the plant was constructed. The city incorporated soon after the plant began operation. The 1,900-home Norwayne area of Westland was built to accommodate the new residents working at the plant.

The plant employed 42,000 people at one time during production of "The Liberator." Midgets were used to assist in the assembly of the plane wings as they would crawl inside the small inner wing to attach the inner and outer pieces of the plane wing.

"They were some of the highest paid employees at the plant," Reel said.

Reel's responsibility at the facility was to take the plane on two-and-a-half hour test runs over southwestern Michigan and Lake Huron. He and the other test pilots would also fly the planes to a modification center in Birmingham, Alabama.

One of the aviation consultants for Ford at the Willow Run plant was a man named Charles Lindbergh.

"Lindy was quite a practical joker," Reel said. "One of the other pilots asked him once if he could have two of his autographs."

Lindy said 'sure, but why do you want two?' The pilot told him he could get one Gene Autry for two of Lindy's," Reel said.

Lindbergh took it as good fun, Reel said, but also exacted revenge on the pilot when the two had to fly a B-24 to Alabama for repairs.

"The hotel manager where we would stay recognized Lindbergh and gave him a very nice suite," Reel said. "And gave the other pilot a regular room. Before turning in for the night, Lindbergh called the other pilot and asked him if he wanted to swap rooms. The pilot readily agreed, but what he didn't know was the media got word that Lindy was in town and called his room all night for comments."

Lindbergh got a good night's rest and the other pilot knew he had been fooled."

Reel said he accepted 75 percent of the planes he tested on the first flight, an attribute to the assembly talents of the workers in the plant. The test pilots lost one plane in testing, but not through any manufacturing fault.

"A young crew, some cowboys, crashed after they couldn't pull the plane out of a dive," he said. "They were so crazy the flight engineers had refused to fly with them anymore."

Reel donated a video of the story of the Willow Run plant to the Wayne Historical Museum. For more information about viewing the video, call 722-0113.

Conference reports to be issued

Representatives of the 17 Conference of Western Wayne communities are meeting Friday at the Sumpter Township Hall to hear updates on current CWW programs and a presentation by the Western Township Utilities Authority.

Each month, the CWW members gather in the municipal offices of one of its members to receive reports from the executive director, staff and committees. Informational presentations on proposed programs also are heard during the monthly meetings.

Each community is represented at the meeting by its mayor or supervisor, or by a designated alternate.

The conference serves as the collective program planner and developmental entity that provides a forum for the discussion and review of area issues and concerns. Currently, the CWW staff in-house advisory committees include personnel, solid waste and joint purchasing. Past programs range from implementing an enhanced 9-1-1 emergency telephone service for member communities to administering and coordinating community service programs.

On Friday, CWW Chairwoman Beverly McAnally, the mayor of Romulus, and CWW Executive Director Daniel Gilmartin will present reports from the executive committees.

In addition, Gilmartin will update the membership on senior transportation, the activities of the western Wayne auto theft and narcotics units and plans for a drug-free alliance.

Members of the conference are Wayne, Westland, Romulus, Inkster, the townships of Sumpter, Van Buren, Canton, Huron, Plymouth, Northville and Redford. Members also include the cities of Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Livonia, Northville and Plymouth. Officials of the city of Belleville are currently considering membership in the CWW.

The meeting, slated at 9:30 a.m. April 20, will be conducted in the Sumpter Township Hall.

School store makes shopping easy

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Five minutes into lunch time at Romulus Junior High School, the rush for candy, key chains and neon pens begins, and the junior salespeople running the operation go into action.

The store, which has been open since October 1988, is operated entirely by students with teacher supervision.

For class credit students stock shelves and arrange displays, run the cash register, provide customer service and handle some of the paperwork.

"I just like helping people when they need help," said Kathleen Ensminger. "My main job is working with personals (toiletries)."

LaTasha Little has been operating the cash register since the beginning of the school year.

"It's good," she said. "We've got a lot of good things here."

Sofar, the students say, business at the store has been strong, especially at the candy counter.

"It's fast moving. You just have to put things on the candy counter as fast as you see it," said student Chris Delaney.

Laffy Taffy and Lifesavers are by far the best sellers, the students said.

Before the store opened, a group of teachers surveyed every class in the building asking them on what they would spend their money. Candy, paperback books, magazines, toiletries, school supplies, small gifts and cards were top responses.

"I work with school supplies," said Frank Brock. "I say 'may I help you' and just write up sales slips."

Gregory Fields, who will move on to high school next year, said his experiences setting up displays at the candy counter helped him find a similar job earning cash.

"Sometimes I work in a store on the weekends. I stock shelves," he said.

Teachers said the idea for the store is based on a similar project at the high school. By spring 1988, the middle school project was in the planning stages.

Now, the store is open during first hour and lunch time. Student council items, such as shirts in school colors, are sold with the regular stock.

Business is strongest, teachers said, during holidays such as Halloween, Valentine's Day and Mother's Day. Students come to the store to buy cards and gifts.

Also a lure for students last year were trendy items like friendship bracelets and wrap-around key chains.

In the store, nearly all the student employees are quick to offer a tour and boast about the quality of their products. They say they like the responsibility.

"Most of the time I enjoy working here," Delaney said.

Additional workers at the store are Dimetrius Swanigan, Carl Hall and Bill Bailey.

Business, government can be on same side

In Wayne, business owners have united in what appears to be a major struggle against government officials.

The business owners say they are treated unfairly and they are not getting their "money's worth" in terms of taxes paid to the city.

City officials say these particular business owners are being irrational, and that they are basically "government bashing."

The lines have been drawn, it seems, and the fight has begun.

These business owners, as business owners in all other communities, have the right to organize and speak their collective minds in terms of conditions in the city and working environment.

City officials have the responsibility to listen to the complaints, and make judgements on their validity. They then act upon those complaints in whatever manner they see fit.

It is important, therefore, that the lines of communication remain open between the business community and government. One cannot exist independently, but rather depends on the other for support.

Organizations which form in an effort to enhance this communication are always welcome. From such constructive entities great things can come. Ideas for joint ventures between business and government, potential solutions to hard-fought problems — they can be achieved when a cooperative effort is made.

In the past we have seen very positive things happen when the business world and the government world collide. Business, government and community leaders, for example, united to invent programs for the celebration of Earth Day this week and recycling programs which could benefit future generations. Business owners and government leaders united to promote the establishment of the enhanced 9-1-1 emergency telephone system which has resulted in saved lives in all of our communities.

There is room for positive developments, when business and government work on the same side toward the same end. Agreements will not always be reached, and everyone cannot be made happy all the time. But good things can happen when we communicate.

Earth Day efforts deserve attention

April 22 marks the 20th anniversary of Earth Day — a day set aside to call attention to issues of the environment.

It is also a day which many community groups and individuals have worked diligently toward. Many local park cleanups, recycling projects and seminars will take place in honor of Earth Day 1990 thanks to the efforts of thousands of residents.

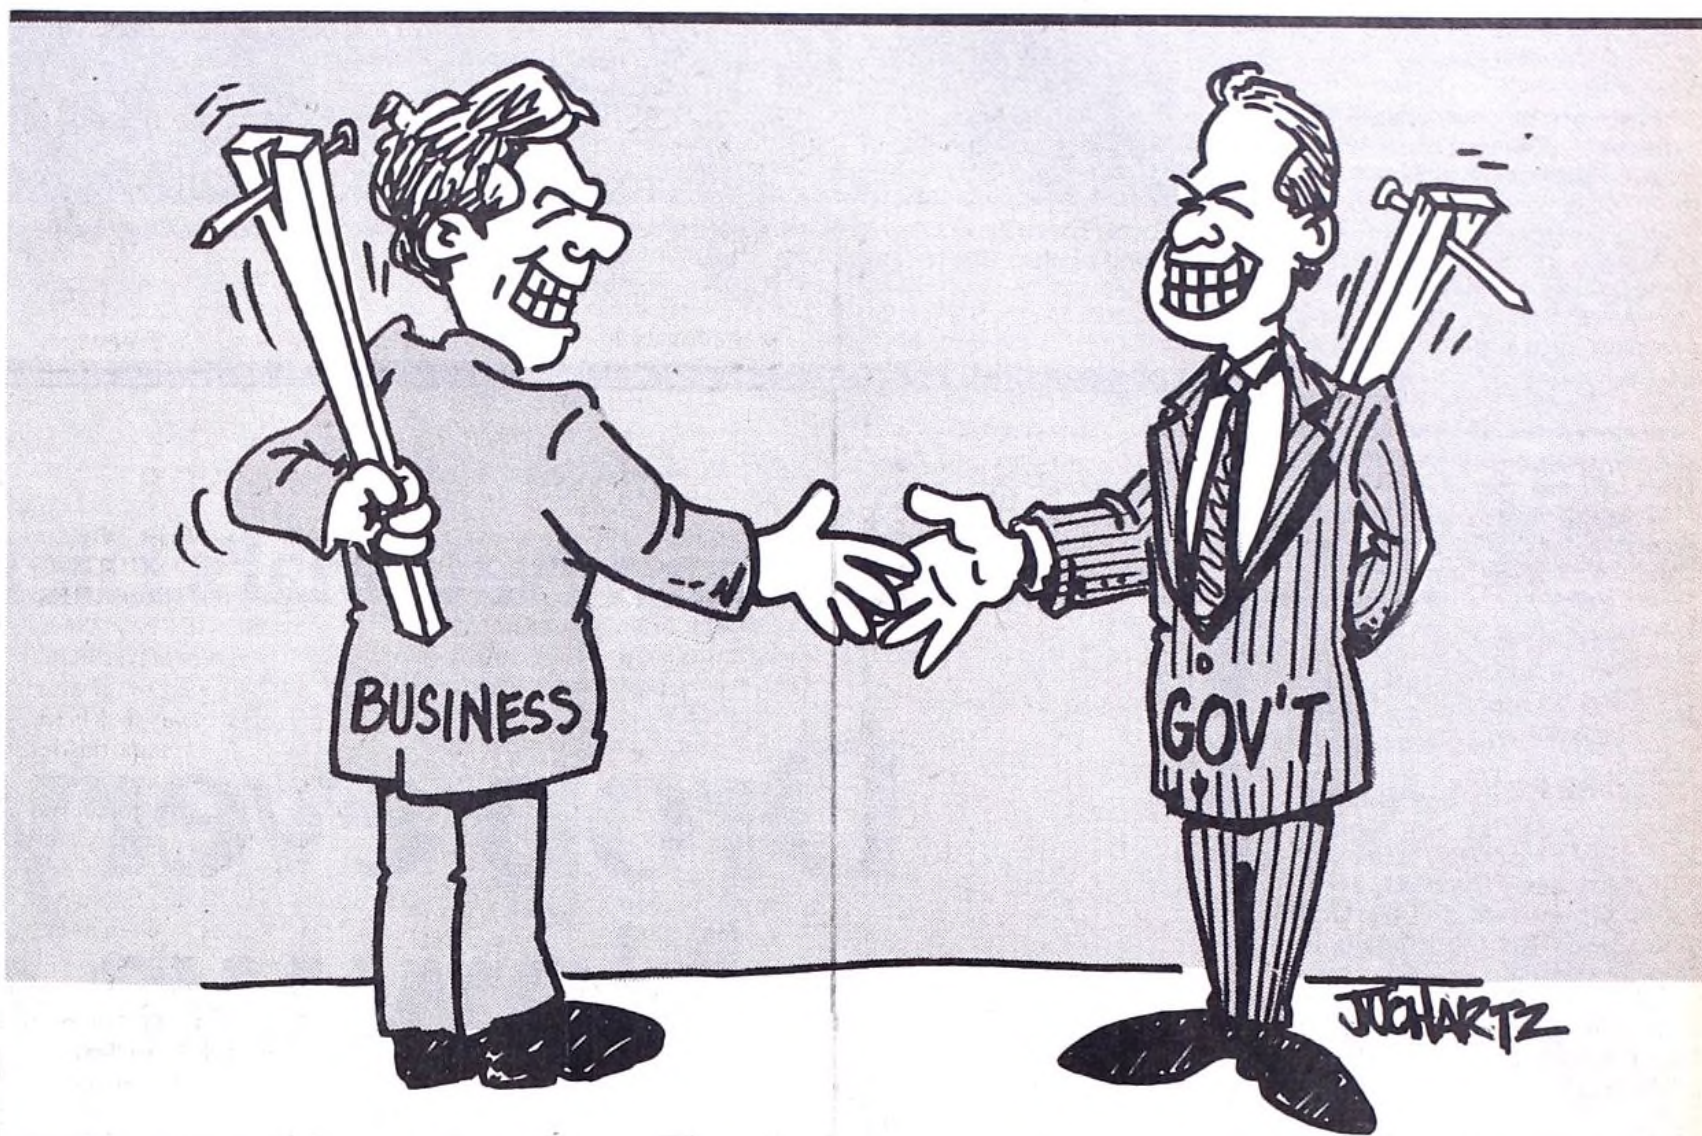

They should be commended for their efforts, and feel good about their accomplishments. They care and that will make the difference.

Perhaps the heartiest praise any of us can heap on these individuals and groups, however, would be to participate in their events. They worked too hard to witness poor turnouts and low participation.

We have but one environment, and we must learn to protect it through recycling, tree-plantings, composting and other means.

These programs and projects can help us to better realize the significance of the environment, our place in the environment, and Earth Day.

So participate!

MUTUAL RESPECT

Where's the money

Phantom Money. Our style of communicating to our public has not included responding to letters to the editor in the past. However, not correcting the misinformation in Mr. Moranty's letter of March 22, 1990, is considered tantamount to agreeing with those distortions by some of your readers. Therefore, I will respond to each of his "phantom money" statements:

In-formula school districts, and specifically Wayne-Westland, receive no increase local property valuations. For each increased local dollar, there is a corresponding decrease of a dollar from the state-aid formula.

Governor Blanchard has announced his proposed budget which includes a 7 percent, not a 14 percent increase for K-12 education as Mr. Moranty claims. Of that 7 percent approximately 5.3 percent would go into the state-aid formula. While we continue to experience declining enrollment, approximately a 250 student loss is projected for 1990-91, that increase is severely reduced. In addition, with the defeat of the 2.75 million renewal, another $4.25 million are lost from this year's revenue.

Looking for any tax relief from the Wayne Ford truck plant expansion in 12 years doesn't address the current generation of students. We certainly expect the issue of equity throughout the school districts to be addressed before then; but, we have a responsibility for our current students now. That's why our proposals were requested for only two years.

Depending upon the possibilities of the Patterson-Anderson proposal or any other legislative proposal begs the question. If and when those issues materialize they will include an appropriate adjustment to our inordinate dependence upon property tax. Until then, I believe we have a responsibility to the young people in our community. Unfortunately, the only available alternative for the short range to appropriately educate today's youth rests with the local community.

Meeting our financial responsibility cannot be addressed with "phantom money". Therefore, we have proposed and our Board of Education has approved program/personnel reductions which will balance the 1990-91 budget. By addressing the $7 million shortfall, we will comply with state law and adhere to sound fiscal policy. Because these cuts balance the 1990-91 budget, Wayne-Westland will not be classified as a "Crisis District" by the Michigan Department of Education. However, the fiscal condition which caused this action has forced us down the path of a "crisis" status educationally.

Dennis O'Neill
Wayne-Westland, Superintendent

What's the choice?

Pro-Life? Pro-Choice? Now It's Put Up — or Shut Up Time....

There are now over 2.5 million abused, battered, neglected children in the U.S. who deserve the RIGHT to LIFE... WHAT life?

In Metro-Detroit, after 3 years of her "right to a life" of living hell, her own mother threw her into a running washing machine! Right to What life?

Almost daily, news stories of newborns found in garbage bags, dumpsters or alleys or doorsteps, have a right to WHAT life?

Babies born with drug addictions, fetal alcohol syndrome (FAS), or AIDS — are doomed to institutional life and early death...right to what life?

Eight-to 18-year-old boys and girls prostituting, dope addicts and peddlers; homeless runaways because they were not wanted by their natural parents... Right To What Life?

The moralists forget, or ignore, the FIRST indiscretion of man; Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. Why expect celebrity in the modern world when even Dr. Koope, former surgeon general and a pro-life advocate, accepts the reality of today's sexuality? He does not oppose sex education, birth control, family planning, use of condoms, because if there is honest, unemotional clear thinking about the right-to-life and anti-abortion, then those disciples must also accept full responsibility for giving the financial and personal support to all these 2.5 million, and future unwanted new babies, for their right to a normal life.

It's a put up or shut up situation at this point. Let's stop wasting energy and money walking the streets with little signs...stop harassment and violence at abortion clinics and help the helpless to have the right to life you hold so precious!

Parks net boost from convicts

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

Workdays are replacing jail sentences for those convicted of non-violent crimes in Wayne County.

Through this program, the Alternative Work Force, much needed jail space is saved and manhours are provided to the county, supporters claim.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara had praise for AWF last week when he watched participants in action at the Nankin Mills facility in Westland. McNamara observed as participants made picnic tables for the county park system.

"This program is a definite win-win situation for Wayne County," McNamara said. "Not only are these misdemeanants able to serve their punishment in a productive manner, but they are also helping us to revitalize our entire park system. They seem to be enjoying it as well."

The AWF was designed in 1986, strictly for non-violent misdemeanants. During February 1990, the AWF averaged more than 100 participants each day, all working in Wayne County.

"The residents of Wayne County should feel good that these offenders are actually making their quality of life a little better for a change," said Pat Kukula, AWF director. "But is also important to the workers that they are able to give back to the community they may have offended."

County officials said the county park system had nearly 4,000 picnic tables during peak years in the 1960s and '70s. All but 50 of the tables were lost to vandalism and thieves in the 1970s or to wear and tear.

Tables were often dismantled and stolen, they said. Many others wound up in the Rouge River. In the past five years the county built back to the current level of 700 to 800 tables.

The new tables, however, are constructed with a pressure treated lumber to protect them from the elements. County officials said they hope a more durable design and extreme weight will combine to make the tables theft-proof.

Wayne County Union Local 101 participated in the planning and utilization of AWF workers. The union also prepared the lumber, which requires heavy machinery, and agreed to let the AWF workers assemble them.

"When we became a division in 1985 one of the first things I realized was we needed picnic tables - badly," said Deputy Parks Director Dan Navarre. "After talking with Mr. McNamara, we realized the work force would be able to build the tables we otherwise wouldn't have been able to afford."

Each table costs roughly $65 and can be assembled very quickly, county officials said.

"Six or eight of these workers can put together 30 tables in one day," said Parks Director Hurley Coleman. "We'll keep building them as long as we have money for the materials. We hope to assemble 500 new tables during this year."

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara compliments workers in the alternative workforce for their ingenuity in assembling picnic tables at Nankin Mills. ANP photo special

Portrait unveiled

As part of ceremonies marking Congressman William D. Ford's 25 years of service in the House of Representatives, an official portrait was unveiled. The portrait was commissioned to honor his work as chairman of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service. Ford has been chairman of that committee since 1981. Viewing the portrait following the unveiling are Speaker of the House Thomas Foley (left to right), Margaret Ford Van Vleet, the congressman's daughter, Ford and artist Joseph Maniscalco of Detroit. Foley and Ford arrived in Washington together for the first time following the 1964 election. Ford is expected to assume the chairmanship of the Committee of Education and Labor next year. A LITTLE GREEN PUTS YOU RIGHT ON THE GREEN

You don't need to be among the leaders on the 1989 Senior Tour Money List to participate in the 1990 Senior Mazda Tournament Players Championship. For as little as $10, you're guaranteed a spot in the field — to watch some of Golf's Greatest Legends.

Packages ranging from single-day tickets to week-long stadium club passes are available for this exciting inaugural event June 4-10 at The Dearborn Country Club.

If Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Gary Player and Defending Champion Orville Moody don't plan on missing this event, why should you?

Sunny

Warm hello welcomes customers

Sunshine is exactly what you will find at Sunshine Food -N- Beverage on the corner of Newburgh and Marquette in Westland.

Owner Paul Stasiak moved from Florida to Michigan and brought a little of that sunshine with him.

"I had a store in Florida, but decided to move up here," Stasiak said.

Sunshine Food -N- Beverage opened Dec. 23, 1989, and Stasiak said he has been having a good time ever since.

"That's what a good business is all about, a friendly face behind the counter," said an enthusiastic Stasiak. "Customers have their own troubles, they don't want to hear about mine so I try to lighten things up."

Stasiak said he enjoys telling jokes and funny stories from behind the counter, and he thinks that makes a difference to his customers. He shows genuine interest in the people who come into his store, and he aims to please.

"I had a customer coming in who wanted Ben and Jerry's Ice Cream which usually only sold in the northeast," Stasiak recounted. "I searched out a guy who could get it to me, but it would have been really expensive."

market with grocery items, a deli, beer and wine. In addition, Stasiak offers videos on a rental basis.

"I'm no Blockbuster, but I do alright," he said.

Stasiak said customers come to his store rather than the large supermarkets because he is more tuned in to their needs.

"This is really a people business, and I make a point of knowing my customers," he said. "I like to keep things very upbeat."

Stasiak has one full-time employee and two part-timers. He, on the other hand, works all the time.

"I'm always here, but that is what owning a business is all about, and I love it. It's great," he said.

Business booms for sign firm

The McDonald's of the plastic sign industry, that is how owner Ja Lin refers to his business, Signs Now in Westland.

Since the opening of the first Signs Now store in Westland two years ago, Lin has become part of a thriving corporation. There are 69 Signs Now franchises throughout the U.S. with headquarters in Mobile, Alabama.

Lin saw a demand for companies wanting distinctively designed signs that set a client's company apart from their rivals.

Lin said he is able to design and produce plastic signs for retail and personal use at a very affordable price.

"I promise customers a 24-hour turnaround on an order, and I can also give customers same-day delivery at no extra cost," he said.

Because Lin uses computer-design software, Signs Now can economically produce signs in large or small quantities. Lin, who holds a master's degree from the University of

New Haven in Connecticut, works as a director of operations at a high-tech firm in Ann Arbor during the day and works evenings at his store.

During the day his wife Daluh, who has a master's degree in math statistics from Wayne State University, manages the store.

Retail and commercial clients include convenience stores, furniture stores, restaurants, real estate companies and Westland Shopping Center, Lin said.

"We also produce address signs with reflective numbers so motorists can read the sign at night," he said.

The standard size sign is four foot by eight foot, but Lin is willing to custom design a sign to satisfy a customer's needs.

"When I design and produce signs, I put an emphasis on high quality, low price, and speedy delivery," Lin said.

Lin started the business in Westland because, he said, it's a growing community with many opportunities and nice people.

Northwest workers mark Earth Day

By DAWN E. ABFALTER
ANP Staff Writer

Employees at Northwest Airlines will be planting 1,990 Austrian pines Sunday in honor of Earth Day 1990 at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

The Earth Day memorial will take place from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. The time was selected so that the maximum number of employees could participate in the event.

In addition, from September 1989 to April 1990, the staff and customers of Northwest Airlines saved paper products as part of a recycling effort. The products, if standing upright, would form a pile more than 3/4 of a mile high.

The joint effort included staff members saving paper products from airplanes, and customers placing paper in marked boxes labeled for the event.

The paper project was not first geared to Earth Day, according to Michael Ray, employee at Northwest. As time passed, he said, it seemed appropriate to make Earth Day the focal point.

Ray and co-worker Michael Forsythe were the coordinators of the project.

The total paper products collected weighed more than 157,000 pounds. Ray said the recycled paper could have saved 1,574 trees from destruction, and 234 cubic yards of landfill space.

April 22, 1990 marks the 20th anniversary of Earth Day. Earth Day is a joint effort of communities, individuals and institutions to educate the public about environmental issues.

With the aid of many, the long list of environmental problems has been drawn to the public eye.

Northwest employees hope the planting of 1,990 Austrian pines will be the seed needed to help some people ask the question, "How can I help?"

Out for the count

The 7-Eleven census information center in Inkster was a flurry of activity as they promoted the 1990 Census. Rap performers and other young people crowded around the store luring people in with questions about their census forms. Inkster City Councilman Stephen Berry and NAACP representatives, William Clark, Irma Yankee, Rev. Larry Hines, Aliel Hussein and Nadia Mouzaham also helped out. ANP photo special

In-house recycling

A local manufacturer is doing its part for Earth Day by starting an in-house paper recycling plan, and also staging a seminar to teach employees recycling tips they can use at home.

Nederman Inc., located in Westland, is a manufacturing company that specializes in products which are marketed to any industry where hazardous contaminants can be inhaled by employees.

"We're already taking environmental actions for industry - now we're trying to give something to the community too," said Colleen McGuire, manager of marketing for the company.

On April 26, Jan Hoffman, a local recycling expert, will be speaking to employees about the effects of recycling for business, community and at home. Hoffman is expected to explain general benefits of recycling and she will also talk about some current issues.

Police search for local man

The search for a 27-year-old mentally retarded man, Sidney Bright, of Westland, has continued since his reported disappearance at 8:20 p.m. April 15 in the 1,800-acre Oakwood Metro Park, near Flat Rock.

Bright, who is a 6-foot-tall black male with a mustache, was visiting the park with residents of the Oakwoods Lane group home of Westland, according to reports.

Bright was last seen by his fellow hikers as he slid down a hill Sunday, according to Ernest Burkeen, park superintendent of Lower Huron, Oakwood and Willow parks.

Burkeen said the Metro Park police, which is the primary investigating force, have searched for the man with tracking dogs, mounted police, rangers using four-wheel vehicles and a helicopter. There has been no sign of Bright.

Approximately 90 percent of the park property was searched by late Monday, according to reports.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, Wayne County Sheriff's Department officials dragged the Huron River which runs through the park.

Investigators were expected to continue the search throughout the week.

Basketball Team

These cagers had unforgettable season

Leatrice Scott, a 5-10 junior who hails from Tennessee, is probably one of the most talented basketball players in Inkster's history. She finished the 1989 campaign with an enviable 21.3 points per game scoring average. She also contributed 13.7 rebounds per game. Her presence in Coach Dwight Hotchkiss' lineup made the Vikings a legitimate state title contender. "She can play just about anywhere," said Hotchkiss, whose team finished with an 18-4 won-lost record, the best in the history of the school.

Susan Molenda was one of the most consistent players for the Eagles of Romulus. A multitasking athlete, the 5-9 junior scored in double figures in almost all of the games this season. She's a clutch-kind of player, coming through for the team when needed. "Susan is an unselfish player who you can always rely on to give you 100 percent every time she's out there," said Romulus Coach Tim Cullen. Molenda also earned recognition in the tough South Central Conference. Because of her versatility, Molenda could play just about any sport she chooses.

Tequan Abney, the Vikings' power forward, muscled her way to 9.8 rebounds and scored 17.4 ppg. during a record-setting Inkster basketball season. Abney will be one of the major building blocks for the 1990 team that may even better their outstanding 18-4 record of 1989. "She does so many things so well. She's a dynamic player who could break open any game," Abney was one of two players who were selected for All-Suburban Athletic Conference honors. A junior, Tequan could make it into the All-State ranks if she continues to improve her game.

Jennifer Takalo, one of two sophomores to break into the All-area ranks, matured into an outstanding player for the Tigers of Belleville. A 5-9 cager who chipped in nine rebounds and six-points per game, Takalo has showed signs of greatness in the second part of the season. "She started slow," noted Belleville Coach Michael Garland, "however, as she picked up some experience, she became one of our finest players. We are looking forward to her achievements during the next two seasons."

Janet Hughes is one of a score of outstanding players produced at New Boston Huron High School. Huron has won several conference and district championships, and the 5-8 Hughes, a regular in the Chiefs' lineup, has been in the midst of those title campaigns. An aggressive player who knows her way around the boards, Hughes is also among the team's top scorers. Hughes also was named to the all-conference team, after the Chiefs finished second to the league. A natural team leader, Hughes set the pace for the Chiefs.

The high school girls' basketball teams have come a long way since the fall schedule format began nearly a decade ago in Michigan. The class of player has improved and local talent is considered among the best in the state. This year's Associated Newspapers' All-area team exemplified the outstanding caliber of cager the area has been producing. And, if what the coaches are predicting comes true, the 1990 season should be even better for local teams. ANP photo by Werner Slocum/staff photographer.

Viking coach honored

Dwight Hotchkiss can't wait for the 1990 high school girls' basketball season to get underway. He has a lot of good reasons. The Viking coach has five veteran players returning to a lineup that a year ago posted an 18-4 won-lost record, which stands as a school record. Inkster also won a share of the Suburban Athletic Conference title and, in post-season competition, reached the Class B district finals where they lost a heartbreaker to Divine Child. The league will begin competition on May 18. Recreation officials said that they have scheduled a 7 p.m., Monday, April 23 meeting at the Inkster Recreation Complex to hold talks on an adult men's Class B softball league. The league will begin competition on May 18. Recreation fees are $325 per team. There is May 11 deadline to pay the entry fee. Also, Inkster recreation officials are planning to organize an adult co-ed softball league that will begin June 1. There is a $125 registration fee that is

Jennifer Chatzka, a three-year veteran of varsity competition at Belleville High, was an excellent outside shooter who was the Tigers' leading scorer. The 5-7 unselfish cager was called upon "to play out of position because the Tigers didn't have a point guard," coach Michael Garland said. "We had to shuffle a lot of our players around and, unfortunately, Jennifer was one of those we called upon to play one of the guard positions. I am sure that she would have had a better scoring average if we could have used her at forward."

Shonette Lamar, who is a natural point guard, surfaced with 11.1 assists per game to go along with her 12.3 ppg. for the defending Suburban Athletic Conference champs of Inkster. "She's quick, an excellent ball-handler, and a junior, which means she will be back next year," said Inkster coach Dwight Hotchkiss. "Shonette was our sparkplug, and her 11.1 assists per game reflects how unselfish she is. She would pass up shots to feed her teammates. She has natural athletic ability," Hotchkiss added.

Carmita Brown, a South Central Conference nominee from Romulus, made the difference in the Eagles' lineup. She is a tough competitor who hates to lose. Scoring at a better than 10-point clip each outing, Brown is a prospective all-state kind of player. She has an excellent shooting touch and is a deft ball-handler, who put in overtime because of the Eagles' lack of depth last season. Look for Brown to grow. At 5-9, and a sophomore, Brown will definitely be a player to contend with during the next two years.

Julie Debozy brought the curtains down on an outstanding basketball career at New Boston High School. Huron's rivals knew they had to stop this 5-9 senior if they wanted to win, and they rarely could. She pumped in baskets at a two-figure clip in 90 percent of her games this year, finishing with all-conference honors. Debozy also was a tough competitor under the boards. From a family of outstanding athletes, Debozy helped the Chiefs capture their third consecutive Class B district title. They lost to Dearborn Divine Child in the regional finals.

Rains wipe out softball slate

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

With Spring fighting an identity crisis, high school baseball and softball teams have had to sit on the sidelines until Mother Nature finally decides who is boss - spring or winter. She could throw a curve at old man winter and strike him out. But in the meantime, coaches and players continue to moan. Most of the baseball games last week were wiped out by inclement weather. Unseasonable snow and incessant rains have flooded diamonds making it impossible to play scheduled games and events. This week, most schools are closed due to the Easter holidays.

The time off will give the Tigers of Belleville, who are the defending Wolverine 'A' Conference baseball champs, a week off to get prepared for the 1990 conference campaign. The Tigers are scheduled to return to the playing field on Wednesday, April 25 when they clash with the Trojans of Monroe. The Tiger girls' softball team, under the guidance of veteran coach Peggy Curtis, have the Easter vacations to get out the kinks in their lineup. They will resume action on April 25 at home against Monroe. Belleville, a perennial Wolverine 'A' Conference title threat which has won two Class A state titles in the past, is expected to give the conference rivals another run for their money. Local parks and recreation departments are also readying diamonds for the upcoming season. Most are holding organizational meetings to discuss plans for various leagues. The Inkster parks and recreation department is reminding coaches that there are several important dates to remember. Recreation officials said that they have scheduled a 7 p.m., Monday, April 23 meeting at the Inkster Recreation Complex to hold talks on an adult men's Class B softball league. The league will begin competition on May 18. Recreation fees are $325 per team. There is May 11 deadline to pay the entry fee. Also, Inkster recreation officials are planning to organize an adult co-ed softball league that will begin June 1. There is a $125 registration fee that is due on May 25. There was an organizational meeting last night to discuss the season. If you missed it, recreation officials say they will conduct a second meeting at 7 p.m. on May 16 at the recreation complex. Attention Inkster Pee Wee and Midget Division baseball team coaches. The Inkster parks and recreation department will stage leagues for both divisions this summer. From May 1 through June 18, from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m., the leagues will be in operation. Registration forms may be picked up at the recreation department offices. For more information, coaches and managers are urged to contact Ruth E. Williams, athletic supervisor, at 728-7530, Monday through Friday.

Here's how we choose All-area

It's never too late to honor outstanding athletes. And, the 9 young athletes featured today as members of the Associated Newspapers' All-area high school girls' basketball team are outstanding. They displayed their talent on the field of competition during the 1989 season. They were also picked as members of their all-conference teams. Many will return this September to take up where they left off a year ago, playing to bring glory to their team, school, and community; others will go on to star on college and university teams across the country. The All-area basketball candidates were nominated by their high school coaches. Their statistics were then scrutinized by the ANP staff, and finally nominated to take their rightful place in the lineup. Moreover, this will not be the last you'll hear about them. One such athlete is Leatrice Scott, a 5-10 junior, considered one of the finest basketball talents to hit this area in quite some time. And there are always those "surprises" that spring up with a new season. Who these future stars will be only time will tell. However, you can bet that the ANP sports staff will be ready and first to get you all the local news when it happens. Congratulations to the ANP team, and good luck to all of you in the future.

Piston star offers kids cage advice

It never hurts to learn from a professional.

And some 1,000 basketball-minded youngsters got that opportunity last Thursday when Detroit Piston guard Vinnie Johnson came off the bench and shot baskets during the Hungry Howie's Pizza & Subs cage clinic.

The two-hour clinic was staged Thursday at Westland John Glenn.

Johnson, who helped the Pistons win the world championship a year ago and is a key team', Hotchkiss noted, it makes the coach's job that much easier.

Inkster was also presented the Michigan High School Athletic Association's Good Sports Award for the team's conduct in the district playoffs.

With such notable players as potential all-stater, Leatrice Scott, a 5-10 forward, who averaged 20 points per game last season; Tequan Abney, a 5-8 forward, who contributed 19 ppg. a year ago, plus veterans Latonya McMillian (5-8), Shonette Lamar (5-2), and Tawana Green (5-4) returning, the Vikings definitely will have the makings of a championship club come September. They also have a freshman, Christina White, who stands at 5-10, who also should make a difference.

Hotchkiss grew up in basketball country - Indiana, and has enjoyed basketball "as long as player in the Pistons' drive to repeat as the world's best pro cage team, offered the future pros some advice on how to break into the big times.

"Vinnie really puts on a show for the kids," said Steven E. Jackson, president of Hungry Howie's. "He teaches them the techniques of his basketball prowess that makes him a world champion. And he is also a terrific role model. He lets them know that success takes a great deal of hard work."

fifth season as varsity girls' basketball coach at Inkster - he coached junior varsity for one year - Hotchkiss said the key to successful coaching is hard work - peppered with some luck.

"You can't get away from coaching the basics," Hotchkiss stressed. "And, you do need a bit a luck, just ask any coach."

Luck or not - there's no getting away from it - Hotchkiss put together a lineup that also earned him the post-season honor of The Associated Newspapers "Coach of the Year" accolades.

'Miserable start' Champs fall apart in late innings

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Belleville, the defending Wolverine 'A' Conference baseball champ, blew leads in the last innings and dropped key conference games last week.

Consequently, instead of the Tigers enjoying the Easter Holidays with an untarnished 3-0 record, they must repair the damage to the proverbial roof that caved in on them, holding a 1-2 won-lost record.

"We're off to a miserable start," Belleville coach John Bertz moaned after his Tigers lost a 6-3 decision to Trenton and an 8-4 affair to Fordson last week.

Belleville launched the 1990 campaign with a 5-0 shutout of Lincoln Park as last year's All-area hurler, Jeremy Ison, turned in a superlative two-hitter against the Railsplitters.

"You got to be disappointed when your team leads by more than two runs, then falls apart in the last inning," Bertz said. "We should be 3-0, however, we're below the .500 mark as the Easter holidays begin."

"Believe me, I'm disappointed," Bertz and the Tigers will be back in action on April 25 when they travel to Monroe for their fourth conference game of the year.

Ison was near perfect in the opener as he cut down the Railsplitters with a two-hitter. He struck out 11 and walked none. The senior hurler also helped his own cause with a double and a run scored.

Belleville also received a two-run double from Vince Sacco, and Mike Gentz came through with a double and single in three appearances at the plate.

Belleville appeared well on its way to a victory against the Tractors of Fordson in their next outing. Leading 4-1 going into the seventh, the Tigers and starting pitcher Mike Coleman had to put away the bottom of the Fordson lineup to salt away the victory. They couldn't handle it. Fordson cashed in on four walks, five wild pitches, a passed ball and an error to score seven runs.

The game with Trenton looked like an old re-run. Ahead 3-2 in the seventh, Belleville gave up four unearned runs thanks to two walks and a wild pitch by Ison, who suffered his first setback.

In other action last week, Taylor Truman spoiled Don Foley's debut as head baseball coach at Romulus High last week. Taylor scored a 2-0 victory over the Eagles in the season opener for both teams.

Foley returns to the coaching ranks after an eight-year hiatus. He coached the Eagles' varsity football team from 1978 through 1981. He replaces veteran Dennis Stoh, who bowed out after 18 years as the Romulus coach.

Foley also has been a teacher in the school system for 16 years.

"Our pitching and defense were decent," Foley said, "but the hitting has yet to come around. In fact, we only had three (hits) against Taylor."

Ed Tank, one of the finer young throwers in the area last year, got the opening day call for the Eagles. The 5-10, 190-pound junior looked good as he fired a two-hitter, struck out eight and gave up one walk.

Taylor capitalized on a hit, error, and squeeze to push across what proved to be the two winning runs in the sixth inning.

Winning pitcher Danny Sullivan scattered three hits - all singles - to Rich Evans, Eddie King, and senior Rob Hoth.

Weather permitting, the Eagles were scheduled to launch the South Central Conference season Tuesday against Ypsilanti. Today, they will travel to Garden City for a non-conference twin bill before resuming SCC competition on Tuesday (April 24) at Ann Arbor Huron.

Salesman's son steps up in armed forces

The son of "Har" Hargrove, a salesman at Sid Charnock Oldsmobile at 24555 Michigan Avenue in Dearborn, has recently earned his flight wings as a second lieutenant in the Michigan National Guard.

William Hargrove, 27, was one of only 16 graduates of the flight school. He flies the state-of-the-art F-16 fighter plane.

After earning his stripes, Hargrove will be sent to an air force base in New Mexico for fighter tactics classes.

The Hargroves are lifetime Wayne residents. "Har" Hargrove's father-in-law, Lloyd Lebaron, owned an Oldsmobile dealership in Wayne from 1948 to 1969. Hargrove also owned a dealership in Wayne from 1957 to 1979. He has sold cars at Charnock Olds for the past six years.

Hargrove, his four sons and wife, are all graduates of Michigan State University. One of his sons is an ensign in the U.S. Navy and is currently stationed in Scotland.

Auto repair shop opens

A new auto repair business is now open in Romulus.

R & S Auto, on Huron River Drive at Five Points in Romulus, offers everything from tune-ups and oil changes to tire repair and rental trucks. Ron

Spare Parts

John Agge

Sereno, 25, recently opened the business with the help of his father-in-law, Eugene Petrie and, mechanic Robert Ray.

Sereno acquired his auto expertise by attending MoTech after receiving his associate degree from Washtenaw Community College.

R & S Auto is a certified Interstate Battery and Goodyear Tire dealer, and rents Ryder trucks. The most important service the shop offers, however, is quality mechanical work, Sereno said.

"We perform quality work and it's guaranteed," Sereno said. "And this is probably the cleanest shop they'll ever be in."

Sereno charges $15.95 for an oil change and lube, a competitive price, not just a one-time special.

"That's the cheapest everyday price around," Sereno said. "We do brake jobs for $59.95 for each axle."

Sereno said he arrives at his pricing by using the standard mechanic's labor book, but if he believes the price is too much, he will discount the job.

"I just got tired of being ripped off," he said. "That's why I got into this business. I treat people fairly and do good work."

Highway facts

Americans are driving 183 million motor vehicles more than two trillion miles per year, an increase of 182 percent since 1960, according to the Highway Users Federation's 1990 Highway Fact Book. Other highway fun facts included in the publication:

■ Average per capita gasoline use is 502 gallons per year.

■ Nearly 86 percent of commuters use private vehicles, compared to 69.5 percent in 1960.

■ Peak-hour traffic congestion on urban interstates increased from 41 percent in 1975 to 65 percent in 1987.

■ The fatality rate for all highways has decreased from 3.3 percent in 1978 to 2.3 percent in 1988.

■ Between 1965 and 1987, drivers 65 or older increased from 7.5 million to more than 20 million, with 50 million expected by the year 2020.

■ Although highway expenditures per vehicle mile by all levels of government have increased by 28 percent in the last five years, they are still approximately half of what they were in 1960.

Single copies of the booklet are available for $1.50 from the Highway Users Federation, 1776 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Washington D.C. 20036. Quantity prices are also available.

Memories can be devious

Just Desserts

Sue Willett

Memories are devious things, indeed. Mine played some very dirty tricks on me this week.

Here I was, congratulating myself on not finding one single black jelly bean mashed into my white carpet, having avoided even the threat of chocolate eggs melting on my new sofa and the joy of knowing there would be not one single strand of that awful cellophane grass caught in the motor of my vacuum cleaner this year. Hey, this is great, right?

To make it even better, Easter dinner was at an absolutely wonderful restaurant where the food was spectacular and the service divine. This is the way to live. No pots and pans stacked up in the kitchen, no mashed potatoes to wash off the wall, no sticky burned-on ham glaze to clean out of the bottom of the oven at midnight.

Boy is this swell or what? Yep, this is sure the way to live. It's the good life we strive for, huh? Well, maybe.

We did without the mess and aggravation of coloring those stupid eggs that do nothing but spoil because nobody eats them anyway, and I didn't have to break my neck (and my bank account) buying chocolate bunnies and assorted other Easter candy to fuel the creation of Easter baskets for the kids. Nope, no sir, uh-uh, not me. Hey, that junk only escalates the dental bills anyhow, right?

And, there was no waking up at 5 a.m. to the sound of little feet scrambling around looking for the eggs and baskets, or the attempts at stealthily unwrapping chocolate rabbits in covert efforts to consume them for breakfast. What can possibly make more noise than a child attempting to be quiet?

No sir, I wasn't bothered by any of that this year. Actually, about all I did for Easter was phone the restaurant for reservations, from the car, no less. This is the life, no hassle, no bother.

Except that I actually missed it all. I'd gladly trade my clean carpeting for one chocolate-smeared smile from a 5-year-old who just discovered that the Easter bunny left him a wind-up Ninja Turtle in the bottom of his basket.

All those dirty dishes and back-breaking dinner preparations might just be worth it to see my sons' smile as they chomped into their favorite holiday meal.

This year my oldest son spent the day at the law library studying for his final exams and my baby celebrated Easter at his fiancée's where they are making final plans for their wedding.

There is, however, some consolation in all this for me. You see, with one son soon to be married, and the other about to become an attorney, there is no doubt that this lack of holiday stress is temporary.

Pretty soon there will be grandchildren to wreck havoc with my home and sleep patterns. Little ones to terrorize my cat and feed my overweight dog any real food I try to give them. There will be short people to smear chocolate all over the walls and furniture and make me crazy while I'm attempting to roast a turkey and fix all the trimmings. They will drive me nuts, I just know it. There will be screaming, crying, temper tantrums, wet diapers and runny noses. There will be arguments and accidents and complaining neighbors. There will be utter and absolute holiday chaos.

And, as soon as they get old enough, I'll teach them to love these two treats as much as their fathers did.

Energized with a healthy breakfast

By FLORENCE MEEKS
ANP Staff Writer

This battle has been staged for years—snooze button or breakfast, extra moments of sleep or nourishment.

Morning meals are starting to move ahead in this struggle, claims Randall Loeffler, restaurant and bar manager for Holiday Inn-Metro Airport.

"It's not just grab a cup of coffee and a piece of toast and you're out the door," Loeffler said.

Perhaps people are placing more emphasis on a healthy meal because they need one more than ever, he said.

"The professional nowadays doesn't know what the outcome of his day will be. Things come up...When people eat breakfast they don't know what they're going to eat next. It's important to eat something that will carry you through the day."

Loeffler added 75 percent of production on the job is done before lunch, another argument for a good breakfast.

There are three elements of a healthy meal—fiber, carbohydrates and protein.

Carbohydrates such as whole grain breads and cereals or bran products are sure sources of fiber, Loeffler said.

Fruits, another source of carbohydrates, provide fructose for a burst of energy.

Loeffler said foods like eggs, dairy products and some cereals are sources of protein, the key to strength for the day.

He described a complete breakfast with these factors as a three-dimensional meal.

For variety, don't be afraid to stray from corn flakes. Just be sure to read the ingredients on any product, Loeffler said. Items are listed according to quantity from most to last. Beware of products with sweeteners at the top of the list.

Beverages are another way to add flair to breakfast. Experiment with fruit and vegetable (yes, vegetable) juices. Sample herbal tea.

Loeffler pointed out most herbal teas do not contain caffeine. But, don't worry, he said, a healthy meal provides all the energy needed for a strenuous day.

Chef Daniel Danz

Crepe recipe

4 egg whites
1 pint milk
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 lemon (zest and juice)
3/4 cup flour
1/4 to 1/3 cup cornstarch
2 ounces vegetable oil

Blend all ingredients well. In an eight-inch nonstick sauce pan add a teaspoon of oil. Allow pan to become hot. Ladle 2 ounces of batter into the hot pan and swirl the batter until the bottom of the pan is coated. When the bottom of the crepe is lightly brown, flip it over and lightly brown the other side. Remove from pan. Keep crepes covered or they will dry out. Recipe makes approximately 20 six-inch crepes.

Fruit-filled omelettes

4 ounces Egg Beaters
1 teaspoon vegetable oil
1/3 cup fresh strawberries
sliced, set 3 slices aside

In nonstick saute pan heat oil and add egg beaters. Cook omelette three-fourths of the way through and flip. Place the strawberries on top of the omelette and set the pan under the broiler or in a hot oven until the strawberries are hot. Flip the omelette over to create a half-moon shape, slide on a plate. Take the three strawberry slices that were set aside and place neatly on top of the omelette and serve.

Cottage cheese sauce

8 ounces low fat cottage cheese
2 ounces pineapple chunks, drained
2 ounces honey
Skim milk to thin (could use pineapple juice)

Puree ingredients together and chill. Sauce may be served over blintz, pancakes, waffles or with fresh fruit. Other fruits may be substituted for pineapple.

To create seemingly sinful dishes such as pancakes, flans or omelettes, strive to use low-fat ingredients. The hotel, for example, serves a fruit flan made from yogurt instead of custard.

Whole wheat or buckwheat pancakes are more filling than the traditional kind, allowing for smaller servings and a change in flavor.

Avoid sugar- or fat-based toppings such as syrup or butter. Loeffler provided some low-calorie recipe options below from the hotel kitchen.

"You can eat healthy and enjoy it," he said.

Starting this month, the Holiday Inn is encouraging a healthy start to the day with the Powerhouse Buffet and Breakfast. Each of the entrees are under 300 calories, Loeffler said.

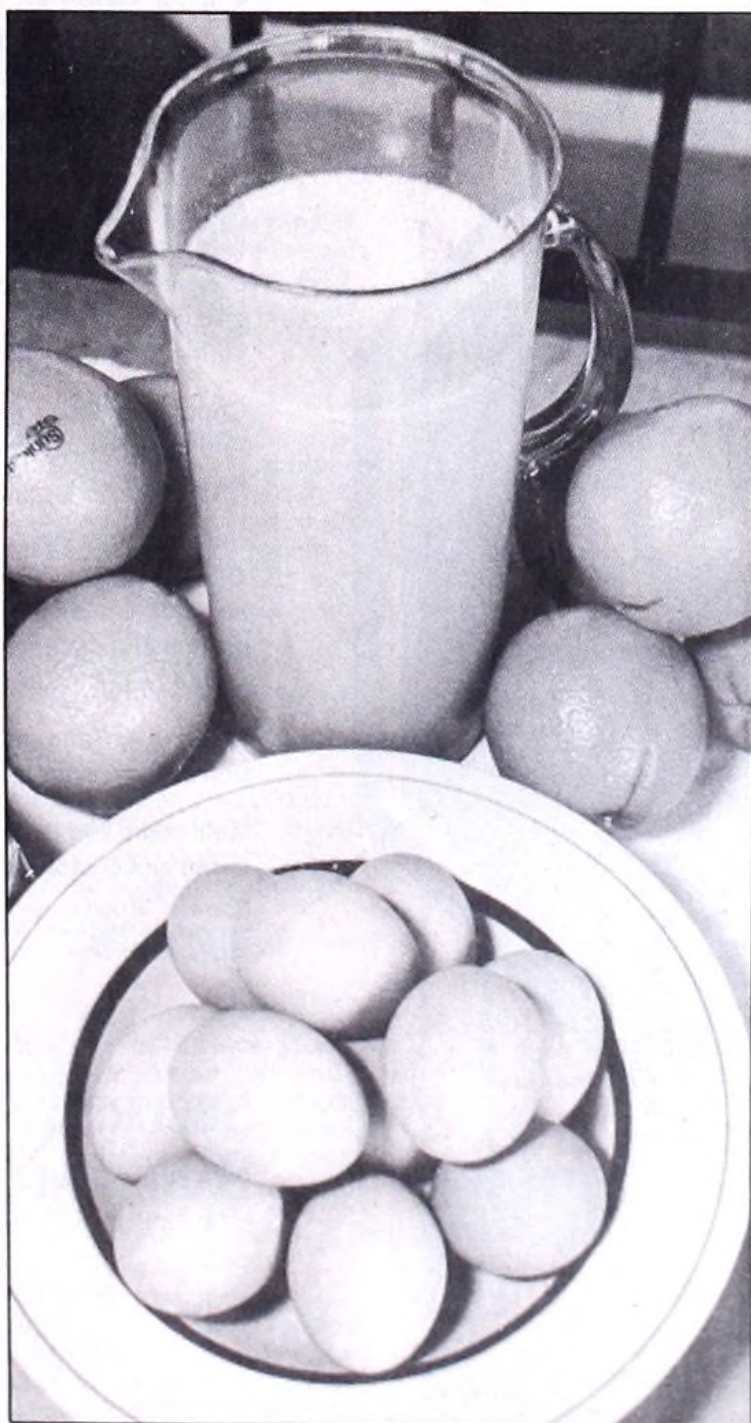

The program ties in with use of the hotel weight room, pool, running track and new jazzercise classes for guests and the public.

The recipes below are samples from the Powerhouse program. Loeffler said his favorite is the apple-filled crepe.

Apple-filled crepes with honey yogurt sauce

1 or 2 fresh apples
8 ounces plain yogurt
2 ounces honey
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Pinch cinnamon
Chopped walnuts

Peel, core, slice and poach apples until a fork easily pushes through the slices. Drain and chill. Combine yogurt, honey and lemon rind. Chill sauce mixture. Place four to six apple slices in the center of the crepe (see recipe below) and roll. Place filled crepe on a plate, seam down. Repeat with second crepe. Ladle 2 ounces of honey yogurt sauce across the crepes. Sprinkle cinnamon and nuts over the sauce and serve.

Desserts

Chocolate steamed pudding

- 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 tablespoon butter, melted
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 large egg, lightly beaten
- 1 1/2 ounces semisweet chocolate, melted
- 1/2 cup milk

Generously butter a 4-cup mold with a lid, set aside. Sift together the flour and baking powder. Set aside. Combine the melted butter and sugar, beating well, then add the egg and continue to beat until mixed. Stir in the melted chocolate and add the flour in three parts, alternating with the milk. Mix well, then pour into the prepared mold.

Place lid securely on the mold and put mold into a larger pot. Surround the mold halfway up with hot water. Cover the pot and steam the pudding over low heat for 1 hour. Allow pudding to rest for about 15 minutes before serving with cream sauce.

Bourbon cream sauce

- 2 large eggs, separated, at room temperature
- 1 cup sifted confectioner's sugar
- 1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped
- 1 tablespoon bourbon

Beat the egg yolks with the confectioner's sugar until smooth. Fold in the whipped cream and set aside. Beat the egg whites until they make soft peaks, then fold into the cream mixture. Stir in bourbon.

Outrageous brownies

- 1 pound (4 sticks) unsalted butter
- 1 pound plus 3 cups semisweet chocolate chips
- 6 ounces unsweetened chocolate
- 6 large eggs
- 2 tablespoons plus 1 1/2 teaspoons powdered instant espresso
- 2 tablespoons vanilla extract
- 2 1/4 cups sugar
- 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
- 4 tablespoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3 cups chopped walnut pieces

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease and flour a 12x18-inch jelly-roll pan. Set aside.

Melt together the butter, pound of chocolate chips and unsweetened chocolate until smooth in the top of a double boiler. Cool to room temperature. Combine, but do not whisk, the eggs, powdered espresso, vanilla and sugar. Stir in the cooled chocolate mixture. Set aside. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Mix into the batter. Finally, fold in the remaining chocolate chips and walnuts. Pour into prepared pan.

Bake about 30 minutes, or until a tester just comes out clean. Do not overbake. Cool thoroughly and cut into squares.

Easter stampede

Thousands of area youngsters crowded the picnic area at Nankin Mill Friday for the annual marshmallow drop. A helicopter swooped down from the sky, dropping 20,000 marshmallows across the empty fields. Youngsters were then let loose to gather up the treats. The marshmallows were traded for Easter gifts. Brianna Johnson, 2, (left) counts her booty. The marshmallow drop was first started in Wayne when Vic Chaisson was director of parks for that city. When Chaisson moved to the county parks department, he made the event countywide. The city of Wayne continues to stage a marshmallow drop for residents. ANP photo by Werner Slocum/staff photographer

Planners prepare to celebrate 'the year of the county fair'

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

A combination of old traditions and new innovations will be featured this summer at the 44th annual Wayne County Fair.

The 1990 fair will be staged Aug. 7 through 11 at the fairgrounds, located on Quirk Road, north of Interstate-94 and west of Belleville Road.

Throughout the nation, citizens will be celebrating 1990 as "the year of the county fair," said Pat Bush, who encourages area residents to "say yes to the best at Michigan fairs and festivals this year."

County fairs, a tradition in Michigan, are a unique educational opportunity that bring producers and consumers together and create a better understanding between them.

"We urge everyone to join their friends and neighbors and have good old-fashioned fun," said Bush. "Help us say 'yes to the best' at the Wayne County Fair in 1990 - the year of the county fair."

This year, as in past years, the county fair will follow the tradition of family togetherness and feature exhibits which are open to both youth and adults, the fair spokesperson said.

Tentative entertainment at the Wayne County Fair will be a tractor pull, wrestling, a queen's contest, bingo, a pony pull and country band.

The popular Robinson's Racing Pigs, which have appeared at many county fairs, are scheduled to return to the Wayne County Fair in August.

The fair also will feature disc jockeys nightly, cruise night, a Las Vegas event, battle of the bands, several pulls and children's entertainment.

A monster truck crushing contest will feature Big Foot, Heart Beat, Excaliber and the Capital City Monster. There also will be an open horse show, open rabbit exhibit and a fun run.

The Wayne County Fair offers visitors the opportunity to experience a little bit of country life. Kevin Howley (above) of Canton Township exhibited his rabbits at the 1989 fair. ANP file photo
